INTUITIVE TECHNOLOGY SOLUTIONS RECEIVES WHITE HOUSE CALL LOGISTICS COMPANY MOBILIZES SUPPORT FOR OREGON SPEECH WITHIN TWO DAYS

Las Vegas, NV – August 29, 2002 – Intuitive Technology Solutions (ITS), a logistics and design firm for conferences, tradeshow and events, provided last minute logistics and event support for an appearance by President George W. Bush last week in Central Point, Oregon. While the President spoke about forest management and the devastating impact of forest fires, the call from the White House created another type of fire drill for the design company.

In addition to short notice from the White House, ITS encountered several challenges in producing this, live feed event. One challenge was the location, which was isolated and had limited local equipment and crew availability. Another challenge was the venue itself, which was a barn used for livestock auctions and rodeos. The barn had a compacted dirt floor with a canvas tarp, which made anchoring the stage and providing power sources difficult.

“We received a call on Monday morning to provide all the staging, set decorations, draping, power distribution for the podium area,” said Brett Beanan, Founder and CEO of ITS. “Within 24 hours, after exploring local equipment and crew capabilities, we had two semi-trucks filled with equipment and necessary crew enroute to Oregon. The speech was on Thursday so the set-up and security clearance was done in record time to make the deadline.”

In addition to providing the staging and draping, ITS also provided the necessary power distribution, copy machines, chairs, tables, and portable toilets for the local and major network press corps which follow the presidential beat.
